"Behold, How Good And Pleasant It Is..."

By John O'Steen

Hightower Associate Professor of Music and Official College Organist

Anthem composed especially for Wesleyan College's Inauguration of President Robert Ackerman

Behold, how good and pleasant it is when brothers dwell in unity!
By wisdom a house is built, and by understanding it is established;
by knowledge the rooms are filled with all precious and pleasant riches.
A wise man is mightier than a strong man, for by wise guidance... and in abundance of counselors there is victory.
Long may he live, may gold of Sheba be given to him!
May prayer be made for him continually, and blessings invoked for him all the day!

Oh Eternal God, bless all schools, colleges, and universities (and especially Wesleyan), that they may be lively centers for sound learning, new discovery, and the pursuit of wisdom; and grant that those who teach and those who learn may find you to be the source of all truth; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Be exalted, O Lord in thy strength! We will sing and praise thy power. Alleluia.

PLANS BEGUN EARLY LAST SPRING BECAME REALITIES

The trim on Porter Auditorium was given a fresh coat of paint.

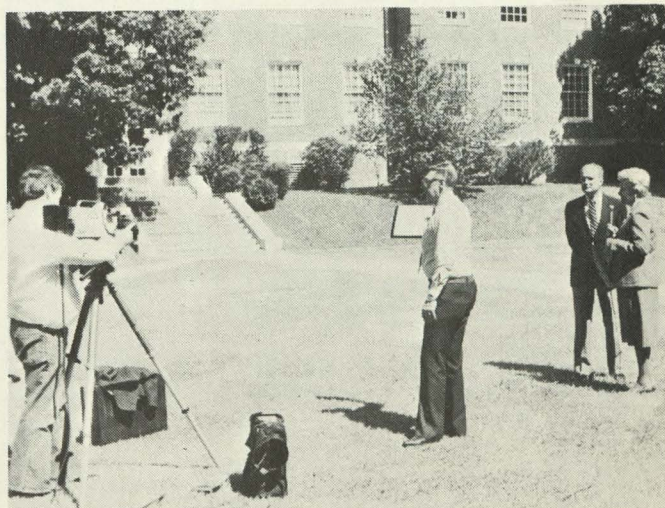

The Presidential Medallion, commissioned by the Alumnae Association, provided the basis for artist Russell Hatfield's visual design, used throughout the week.

Purple bunting and presidential medallions adorned the Loggia. Purple and white chrysanthemums decorated the main campus entrance and later, surrounded the Inaugural podium.

Installation of the new carrillon, made possible through a grant from the James Hyde Porter Fund, was completed just in time for official College Carrillonneur Herbert Herrington to program its computer for the pre-processional selections. The computer is behind Mr. Herrington.

Two local television stations, WMAZ and WGXA featured the College in a week-long series of news and public affairs spots. Here, Dr. Ackerman is interviewed by WMAZ's Doris Martin.

THE CELEBRATION BEGAN SUNDAY, OCTOBER 14

The ATLANTA SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

ROBERT SHAW, Conducting

EDWARD EIKNER, Piano

A celebration concert by the Atlanta Symphony Orchestra was Wesleyan's "tribute to the citizens of Middle Georgia for their support and dedication to the College since its founding in 1836."

Made possible in part by a grant from the Georgia Council for the Arts and Humanities, the concert was "sold out" shortly after the box office opened the first day.

Edward Eikner, Wesleyan's Comer Associate Professor of Fine Arts, performed the Mozart Concerto No. 21 in C Major for the Piano.

"The Atlanta Symphony Orchestra played to an entranced Macon audience Sunday afternoon at Wesleyan College...The commanding baton of Robert Shaw was true to the legend.....His (Eikner's) was a clear, brilliant sound, displaying to advantage the Mozart accent on simplicity raised to supreme elegance....Nothing short of a thunderous standing ovation would do. Magnificent experience."

THE MACON TELEGRAPH AND NEWS, Monday, October 15, 1984

Preceding the concert, Conductor Shaw joined the Atlanta Symphony Orchestra League Georgia Sponsors for a luncheon hosted by Linda Lane and Mr. and Mrs. William Fickling, Jr. The sponsors, who are from many areas of the State, were special guests for the performance.

Mrs. Julian Hightower of Thomaston, her granddaughter, Eleanor Plowden, and Inauguration Concert Chairman Linda Lane of Macon, were among the luncheon guests.

The Reception

The audience took advantage of the beautiful weather, lingering at a post-concert reception held outdoors in front of Porter Auditorium.

Edward Eikner enjoyed a post-concert cup of punch with his mother.

Michelle Martin (l.) and Julie Bowman, members of Wesleyan's newly formed corps of 18 student hostesses, performed their first "official" functions at the reception.

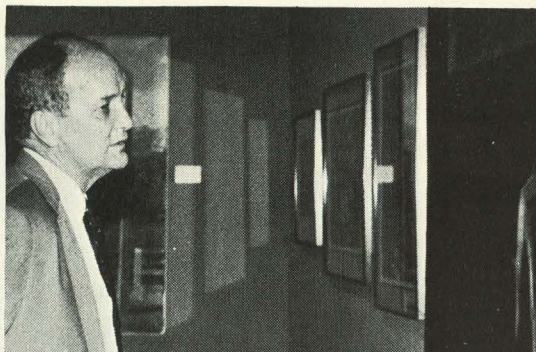

Arrangements for the reception, provided by Elizabeth Conner Tucker, '48, were enjoyed by Mrs. May Ackerman, who is being served by student hostess Angela Arnold.

THE INAUGURAL LUNCHEON

WESLEYAN COLLEGE INAUGURAL LUNCHEON

IN HONOUR OF

ROBERT K. ACKERMAN
TWENTY-SECOND PRESIDENT

OCTOBER 19, 1984
ANDERSON DINING HALL
MACON, GEORGIA

The Inaugural luncheon, chaired by Elsie Lowden Hambricht and Frances Bruce Van Horn was attended by more than 700. Guests had the opportunity to hear Macon's Mayor George Israel present Greetings to the President; remarks by Dr. Paul Hardin, President of Drew University; and by Dr. Ackerman. Frank C. Jones, Chairman of the Board, presided and the Reverend Sam G. Rogers, Senior Minister at Vineville United Methodist Church, gave the invocation.

A humorous incident occurred just before the start of the formalities. Chairman Jones requested that the audience be very quiet when faintly, the unexpected sounds of the carrillon drifted into the dining hall. Dr. Ackerman, listening intently, suddenly leaped up and snapped off a salute - the Marine's Hymn was echoing over the campus.

The Honorable George Israel, mayor of the City of Macon, extended Greetings.

The President responded to his former colleague and welcomed the luncheon guests.

The Anderson Dining Hall, adorned with purple mums, magnolia leaves and medallions, was filled to capacity. More guests overflowed into the other rooms in the Olive Swann Porter Building.

Drew University's President Paul Hardin told the assembly about "the three envelopes" - instructions for a new college president left to him by his predecessor - a tale heartily enjoyed by Dr. Ackerman.

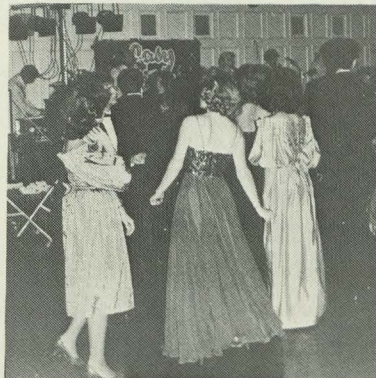

THE GRAND FINALE: THE INAUGURAL BALL

Dr. Ackerman, still fresh after a week packed with activities, scarcely missed a dance, alternating back and forth between the Anderson Dining Hall and the Oval Hall.

President and Mrs. Hardin took a turn to the melodies of the Hines Causey Orchestra in the Oval Hall.

Dancers in the Anderson Dining Hall were enthusiastic about the music of "Easy Touch."

Between dances, President and Mrs. Ackerman greeted the ball guests. Here, they enjoy talking with Business Manager Sam Fort.

The ball, chaired by Mr. and Mrs. Will Manning, brought to a close a truly memorable week for Wesleyan College.

THE INAUGURAL RESPONSE

Robert K. Ackerman

"Mr. Jones, Dr. Wilson, Dean McMinn, President Laney, Faculty, Students, Trustees, Staff, Honored Guests, Honored Delegates from Sister Institutions, and Friends of Wesleyan. The real and lasting importance of this occasion is to celebrate the continuity of this superb institution. Presidents are of impermanent stuff, but the institution continues. The Macon Telegraph, in reporting on the laying of the cornerstone of the first building in 1836, spoke of this college as intended to redeem the role of educating women from "Long Criminal Neglect" and raising the intellect of women to their "Capable Equality." With such a revolutionary origin, Wesleyan has for 148 years assisted women in developing their talents. Last April, May and I were very, very impressed by the citations read for the five winners of Alumnae Achievement Awards. We have since come to know scores of other Wesleyan graduates. This institution has indeed produced people of achievement. Thanks to studies done by a number of colleagues in higher education, some of whom are here today, the case for women's colleges is stronger now than ever before. We know that women who attend women's colleges are on the average more likely to be assertive, to be achievers, to go on to graduate or professional schools, to earn Ph. D.'s, to study the sciences; and, most importantly, to become leaders than their sisters in the co-educational institutions. Hence, Wesleyan, born in a time of legal inequality, mature now in a time of legal equality, has, more than ever, the goal of assisting women in becoming leaders. We are here today to note the beginning of a new Presidential Administration, but more, to celebrate 148 years of accomplishment; and, even more significantly, the promise of endless years of greater achievement. This institution will be an important part in the development of the leading women for the next generation.

Wesleyan's commitment to the liberal arts, like her commitment to the education of women, is historically based; and it is at the center of our mission for the future. We know that the best thing that we can do is to assist our students in preparing for a lifetime of change, a lifetime of learning, a lifetime of leadership. A good liberal arts experience will give them the intellectual mobility to cope with a lifetime of adaptation. We shall give increased attention to our professional programs, ensuring that they are of unquestioned quality and that they are undergirded by liberal learning. Our graduates will be cultured, articulate persons who communicate lucidly, think critically, and are capable of managing complexity.

Our greatest asset is and will always be the faculty. We are a community of competence, a community dedicated to continuing our learning with younger student colleagues, a community committed to women's education and to a productive, creative relationship with the United Methodist Church. Students as junior colleagues join the faculty as senior colleagues in the common enterprise of learning. We participate in what Robert Maynard Hutchins called, "The Great Conversation." I am honored to join such a distinguished community, and I am delighted by the prospects of our continuing and enhancing the teaching-learning process. We can intelligently take courage. The challenges and opportunities are exciting. We of liberal arts colleges have been too long on the defensive. Studies such as that done recently by AT & T show that liberal learning is the best possible preparation for those who aspire to lives of leadership.

Our institutional mission states that Wesleyan, "Affirming its long relationship to the United Methodist Church,... emphasizes a search for knowledge within the framework of the Judeo-Christian ethic..." I am committed to that mission. I see a significant advantage in our church relationship. Even if there were no formal relationship, we could understand that our culture is largely based on the traditions of the Christian Church. Listen to T.S. Eliot. "To our Christian Heritage we owe many things beside religious faith. Through it we have our conception of Roman law which has done so much to shape the western world, through it we have our conception of private and public morality, and through it we have our common standards of literature..." I believe that we in liberal learning are in the peculiarly important role of defending and promoting the best of our civilization. The scientific method is a product of Western Christendom with its belief in God and an intelligible world, but our fascination with the products of science has led us to lose something of our grip on transcendence. We sorely need to regain a sense of mystery, a sense of transcendence, a poetic sense. The President of Johns Hopkins in 1980 said that "The biggest failing in higher education today is that we don't provide a value framework." That is partly because of our singleminded focus on the scientific method has led us to distrust any claim to the truth which can not be proved. Well, values are hard to prove. The quality of grace taught in the New Testament evades laboratory tests. We simply have to continue the scientific method, and at the same time strive to regain an appreciation for values, a sense of the transcendence of human life. We can do this superbly within the context of our church relatedness. As long as we preserve and encourage open debate, there should be no taint of indoctrination.

And now to the students, GREEN KNIGHTS, GOLDEN HEARTS, PURPLE KNIGHTS AND TRI-K PIRATES: to state the case simply, we exist primarily for you. You are our colleagues. We are challenged to work with you in enhancing the quality of this community. Listen to one of America's greatest educators, Alexander Meiklejohn, (a President of Amherst and founder of the Experimental College at the University of Wisconsin). "The sense of the group to which one belongs, the stirring of its loyalties, the sharing in its creation and support, the enthusiasm of its purposes, and its comradeships--these are the stuff out of which the deepest and most vital education is made."

I have cited here what I believe to be some of the principal features of Wesleyan: women's education, liberal arts, church relationship, and the community of teachers and students. These are all valuable assets. I pledge my best efforts to serve the cause of women's education. The metaphor which has occurred to me is that I am to be midwife in the intellectual birth of women leaders. I pledge my best efforts for the cause of liberal learning, to assist faculty, staff, and students in enhancing this community of learning, to refining our focus and our aims, not simply to teach certain disciplines but to assist student colleagues in concentrating on what they are becoming. As important as it is to amass certain knowledge, the greater and overriding goal is to achieve as by-products of scholarship such qualities as hope, patience, wit, wisdom, compassion, generosity, a sense of purpose, and the patience to fail and continue striving."

Thank You.

NOTABLE QUOTES FROM THE INAUGURAL ADDRESS

“EDUCATION AS A MORAL ENDEAVOR”

*By James T. Laney
President of Emory University*

“Wesleyan must succeed. Your strength is important for what you stand for ... and what you stand for is the understanding and conviction that education at its best is a moral endeavor.”

“You are virtually on the eve of your sesquicentennial, and certainly on the eve of a new era. You have elected a leader who brings outstanding gifts of experience, ability and vision to this institution. The importance of this occasion cannot be exaggerated, not only in the South, but in higher education in general.”

“Sometimes we overplay competence as though the mastery of the latest development was really all education was about. I think there’s always the temptation to see education as job training or to concentrate on those skills that will attract students. Wesleyan has resisted that “quick fix,” and its rich traditions in the humanities and the arts promise to educate young women in the role of leadership in the home, in careers and community, the church and yes, the nation!”

“... if a college like Wesleyan or Emory or all of the private church-related institutions in the country do not appreciate how critical their role is for the development of society, there are no other institutions to attend to it adequately.”

“Wesleyan represents that commitment (to serve) - not in a preachy way, but in the finest and noblest way, calling young people to their own aspirations - to the nobility of service, and to the sense that there is no apology for a life that shines and is radiant and would be of value to others.”

“Students want this education; society needs this kind of education; Wesleyan can provide this kind of education. President Ackerman, the future is yours. God Bless You!”

The Annual Fund

Wesleyan College
July 1, 1983 - June 30, 1984

A MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

In this, my first year at Wesleyan, it is a special privilege for me to extend sincere appreciation to all of you who have participated in the Annual Fund. Your commitment to this fine institution and your expression of that commitment by giving to the Annual Fund make the continuing progress of Wesleyan possible.

In 1966 the Danforth Foundation, which has historically been concerned with value-centered education, commissioned a study entitled Church-Sponsored Higher Education in the United States. That report continues to be one of the most authoritative commentaries on the status of colleges. Chapter 4 of this study is entitled "What Makes a Good College." The report indicates eight attributes of a good college. You can be reassured that Wesleyan measures well against these criteria, but of greater interest to you is the eighth attribute: The ultimate lasting effect on students. The Annual Fund is an important way of measuring the lasting effect of the College, i.e., how many Wesleyan alumnae have a continuing loyalty to their alma mater. While the percentage of you who give to the Loyalty Fund is well above the national average, there is plenty of opportunity for improvement. I urge you to continue your support and to encourage others to join you.

The Annual Fund gives us the margin of excellence we need to continue progressing toward the future which Wesleyan deserves. We are very serious about our goals of being a superb women's college, related to the United Methodist Church, with liberal arts, fine arts and professional programs of real significance. Your loyalty to Wesleyan is of immense importance. I thank you.
